

What is Laser Hair Rejuvenation?

Laser Hair Rejuvenation is an effective treatment that uses a helmet-like device. Utilizing low level laser therapy (LLLT), it emits a specific wavelength of light onto the scalp to help with new hair growth.

How does Laser Hair Rejuvenation works?

Low-Level Laser Therapy is also referred to as ‘cold’ laser, so it does not burn your scalp or skin. The Laser light produces a specific wavelength of 650-670nm to stimulate the hair follicle cells. The LED light uses a broader beam of gentle light energy to cover a wider area of the scalp.

By combining the laser and LED, it aims to stimulate biophysical repair and new blood that improves hair growth and resolves hair fall issues. It is especially helpful for those suffering from thinning hair or a large amount of hair fall.

Backed by a strong base of clinical research, red light treatments are known to help increase hair count, hair density and hair thickness for both men and women. The stimulating effect on the dermal papilla cells plays a big role in the regulation of the hair growth cycle. This results in revitalized and nourished hair follicles.
