

About

Safely and effectively remove unsightly milia seeds under the hands of our trained doctor. Milia seeds are a collection of small white spots that commonly appear around the eye or temple area. They are tiny cysts located immediately below the epidermis, the very outer layer of skin, making their distinctive colouring visible. While they do not pose a medical risk, many patients with milia seeds prefer to have them removed for clearer, smoother skin. They are often mistaken for whiteheads, which can cause ill-advised attempts to scratch or squeeze them.

How it works

The milia seed is cauterized using tiny electrical pulses, allowing the contents to be extracted.

*Treatment is conducted by a certified doctor.
